What is gpa on 4.0 scale. What is gpa scale reporting common app 4-100.

If max unweighted is 4.0 and max weighted is 5.0, and I'm reporting my weighted gpa, do I put 4 or 5 for gpa scale reporting under the grades section of the common app?? There's also a space to declare whether it's weighted or not A site called the Common App or the Common Application helps students and parents to apply for colleges much more effectively than the classic way of applying for each college separately. The application is accepted by more than 900 schools and colleges in countries such as the US, Canada, China, Japan, and many European countries. This is the reason why many people around the globe who are not aware of this application keep trying to find out more about the Common App. Which why some are confused about "what is GPA scale reporting on the common app?" or "how do you report GPA on Common App?" If you are wondering the same, then do not worry, here is all you need to know. Also Read | What Is The Common App? How Many Countries Accept The Common Application What is GPA scale reporting on the common app? According to the guidelines presented by the Common App, the GPA Scale is the numerical representation of the highest possible grade average a student can achieve at the school. There are two types of GPAs, one is weighted GPA and the other is unweighted GPA; schools can sometimes provide both or either of them in their result. The unweighted GPAs are reported on a 4.0 scale and consider all classes equal. Weighted GPAs are reported on a 5.0 scale and consider class difficulty when awarding grades. However, colleges consider both when reading a student's application for admission. Also Read | How to remove a college on the Common app? Learn step-by-step procedure How do you report GPA on Common App? As per the current Class Rank and GPA, even if it might change later in the school year. If your school calculates both weighted and unweighted Class Rank/GPA, report the weighted value. Also Read | How to archive a class in Google Classroom? Learn to archive and restore a class here Class Rank Reporting and unweighted GPA scale reporting list 97-100 4.0 A+ 93-96 4.0 A 90-92 3.7 A- 87-89 3.3 B+ 83-86 3.0 B 80-82 2.7 B- 77-79 2.3 C+ 73-76 2.0 C 70-72 1.7 C- 67-69 1.3 D+ 65-66 1.0 D 60-64 1.0 D- 59 > 0.0 F The list for the weighted GPA scale reporting remains the same, however, the difficult subjects receive a 1.0 GPA extra than the other. So, it means that 0.5 points are usually added to the unweighted GPA and it is considered as A+, similarly, an A would be equivalent to a 4.5. Grades in low-level classes are measured using the unweighted scale, so an A in those classes would be equivalent to a 4.0. Unweighted GPAs don't take the difficulty of the courses you take into consideration, whereas weighted GPAs do. In other words, with an unweighted GPA, earning an A in an Honors' class counts for the same amount of GPA points as an A in an on-level course. With a weighted GPA, the A in the honor's class would be ranked with slightly higher GPA points for that class. If you have the option to put an unweighted or a weighted GPA on your college application, you can really put either one. One is not better than the other. The only rule of thumb is to report the GPA that is higher and that makes you look like a better student. As long as you report the higher GPA accurately and make sure that you label it as the correct type of GPA (weighted vs. unweighted), you're good to go. A Note About GPA's In The College Application Process It's important to not stress out about reporting your GPA on your college applications. Even if your GPA is lower than you would want, all you have to do is report it accurately and move on to other parts of your application. It's also important to note that while you should report your GPA accurately, it won't be the number that colleges ultimately consider. Most colleges re-weight student's GPAs based on their own internal grading scale which assigns more or fewer points depending on the types of classes that you took (academic/non-academic, advanced vs. on-level, etc). Lastly, you need to make sure that you send in the latest and most accurate version of your high school transcript along with your GPA and the rest of your application. This way, colleges can look at your reported GPA in context of what classes you were taking and what classes were available to you. Especially if you took a lot of advanced courses, your transcript can often help you in the college admissions process. Conclusion When you're filling out the Common Application, you need to make sure to report your academic information as accurately as possible, including your high school GPA. Misreporting your GPA in any way could seriously jeopardize your chances of acceptance to the colleges that you are applying to. Whether your GPA be weighted or unweighted, as long as you report it correctly on a 4.0 scale, you should be fine. Have some more questions about the college application process?
